Teaching Methodology

St. Lawrence College provides very conducive learning environment that emphasizes on the functional interactions and interrelatedness. Students are always encouraged to participate in group discussions and case studies. Ample project work is assigned to them besides regular class work and assignments. We encourage students to make both individual and group presentations. Activity we do here is based on “PUTTING STUDENTS FIRST” so that they can explore themselves beyond text books and can have a solid foundation in critical skills of thinking, communicating and problem solving.

“Innovative student centered teaching techniques” is applied as a teaching methodology. In addition to the formal classes, workshops and seminars, we frequently conduct different programs for students such as public speaking, personality development, leadership development, and career counseling and talk programs on various emerging subjects and burning issues. To create conducive, affable learning environment and to assist students to blossom their creative potentialities, we frequently hold interactions with teachers, students, management and parents.
