1.3.1 - Institution integrates crosscutting issues relevant to Professional Ethics, Gender, Human Values, Environment and Sustainability into the Curriculum

1. As per the UGC regulations, it is mandatory for the 2nd year students, across all the streams- Arts, Science, and Commerce to pass the subject of Environmental Sciences, which at present under the NEP 2., forms the obligatory part of Undergraduate syllabi, as Value-added course.
2. Environment and sustainability are also incorporated as part of syllabi, with the broad subject 'Ecology', both undergraduate as well as Postgraduate courses in Botany, Biotechnology as well as in Zoology, Environmental management & sustainable development in Geography, or Environmental biochemistry and biotechnology and Biosafety in Biotechnology.
3. Gender, human values are incorporated in the regular course work in Home Science in the form of papers such as Fundamental concepts of family resource management, Human development, and mother craft and child care, and B. Ed courses as part of the syllabi prescribed under separate elective courses on Population education, environmental education, and finally Teaching of values.
4. Ethics in Research, and issues related to plagiarism, are topics which are discussed during the workshops organised for the newly enrolled research scholars, as mandatory part of their pre-Ph. D coursework. Infact, these two topics have been duly posted in the college website for mass dissemination.
5. Gender issues, such as expert talks on Women health (say, during the celebration of the Women's Day), Girl child abuse, Sexual harassment, etc, are routinely taken up, and experts in these fields- both academic as well as social workers are invited for expert talks.
6. The students enrolled in NCC and NSS regularly undertake the Swachh Bharat Abhiyan, in and outside the college.
