2.5.1 - The mechanism of internal assessment is transparent and robust in terms of frequency and mode. Write a description within 200 words.

1. As already emphasized, regular assignments, MCQs-based texts, and project works are given to both undergraduates as well as postgraduate students. In addition, the end-semester internal examination is held for the postgraduate students, while assignments or project work, is relegated to the undergraduate students. These constitute 20 Percent of the evaluation marks. In addition, 5 marks are allocated for the regular attendance.
2. Evaluated copies are reverted back to the students, with the students encouraged to clear any queries regarding the marking of his/her copies. In fact, this effective mechanism to evaluate the teacher learning process has been made mandatory at the level of Postgraduate courses across the different streams.
3. The annual feedback received from the students is analysed and made available to the faculty, towards encouraging them to take remedial measures, as well as incorporate the redressal mechanisms- both in evaluation as well as practicing transparency.
4. Over the last few years, the college has become a nodal centre for the evaluation of the answer copies of the semester, or year-end university examination. The answer copies received from the university, are evaluated in a 'Centralised Evaluation Centre', under the guidance of the select committee constituted. It is mandatory for all the teaching faculty to render their expertise, towards timely completion of the task.
5. lastly, since the evaluation is carried out in the college itself, the answer copies (of different papers) are delegated to subject expert, which only enhances the quality of evaluation.
