Paper 1 Reading Literature

Tuesday, 16th September 2014

3 hours

Set texts may be taken into the examination room. They may bear underlining or highlighting. Any kind of folding or flagging of pages in texts (e.g. use of post-its, tape flags or paper clips) is not permitted.

READ THESE INSTRUCTIONS FIRST

Write your Centre number, index number and name on all the work you hand in.

Write in dark blue or black pen on both sides of the paper.

Do not use staples, paper clips, highlighters, glue or correction fluid.

Answer three questions, one from each of Sections A, B and C.

You are reminded of the need for good English and clear presentation in your answers.

At the end of the examination, submit each section separately.

All questions in this paper carry equal marks.

This question paper consists of 8 printed pages.

Section A

Answer 1 question from this section.

1

Either (a) Write a critical comparison of the following poems, considering in detail ways in which language, style and form contribute to each poet's presentation of youth.

A DRUG STORE¹

*I do remember an apothecary
And hereabouts 'a dwells²*

It baffles the foreigner like an idiom,
And he is right to adopt it as a form
Less serious than the living-room or bar;
For it disestablishes the cafe,
Is a collective, and on basic country. 5

Not that it praises hygiene and corrupts
The ice-cream parlor and the tobacconist's
Is it a center; but that the attractive symbols
Watch over puberty and leer
Like rubber bottles waiting for sick-use. 10

Youth come to jingle nickels and crack wise;
The baseball scores are his, the magazines
Devoted to lust, the jazz, the Coca-Cola,
The lending-library of love's latest.
He is the customer; he is heroized. 15

And every nook and cranny of the flesh
Is spoken to by packages with wiles.
"Buy me, buy me," they whimper and cajole;
The hectic range of lipstick pouts,
Revealing the wicked and the simple mouth. 20

With scarcely any evasion in their eye
They smoke, undress their girls, exact a stance;
But only for a moment. The clock goes round;
Crude fellowships are made and lost;
They slump in booths like rags, not even drunk. 25

Karl Shapiro (1913-2000)

¹A drug store is a pharmacy where medicine and other miscellaneous things, even soft drinks and light meals, are sold.

²From the play, "Romeo and Juliet", the apothecary is a minor character who supplies the poison that Romeo uses to end his life. At first he is unwilling to sell poison to Romeo, but later sells it out of necessity against his conscience.

B THE SWIMMING POOL

All around the apt. swimming pool
the boys stare at the girls and the girls look everywhere but the opposite or down or up. It is as it was a thousand years ago: the fat 5 boy has it hardest, he takes the sneers,
prefers the winter so he can wear
his heavy pants and sweater.
Today, he's here with the others. 10
Better they are cruel to him in his presence than out. Of the five here now (three boys, two girls) one is fat, three cruel,
and one, a girl, wavers to the side,
all the world tearing at her. 15
As yet she has no breasts
(her friend does) and were it not for the forlorn fat boy whom she joins in taunting, she could not bear her terror, which is the terror 20
of being him. Does it make her happy that she has no need, right now, of ingratiating, of acting fool to salve
her loneliness? She doesn't seem so happy. 25

Thomas Lux (1946-)

Or (b) Write a critical comparison of the following poems, considering in detail ways in which your responses are shaped by the writers' language, style and form.

A THE POOR

It's the anarchy of poverty delights me, the old yellow wooden house indented
among the new brick tenements

Or a cast iron balcony 5
with panels showing oak branches in full leaf. It fits the dress of the children

reflecting every stage and 10
custom of necessity – Chimneys, roofs, fences of wood and metal in an unfenced age and enclosing next to nothing at all: the old man in a sweater and soft black 15 hat who sweeps the sidewalk –

his own ten feet of it – in a wind that fitfully turning his corner has overwhelmed the entire city 20

William Carlos Williams (1883-1963)

B RICHARD CORY

Whenever Richard Cory went down town,
We people on the pavement looked at him:
He was a gentleman from sole to crown,
Clean favoured, and imperialy slim.

And he was always quietly arrayed, 5
And he was always human when he talked;
But still he fluttered pulses when he said,
"Good-morning," and he glittered when he walked.

And he was rich – yes, richer than a king –
And admirably schooled in every grace: 10
In fine, we thought that he was everything
To make us wish that we were in his place.

So on we worked, and waited for the light,
And went without the meat, and cursed the bread;
And Richard Cory, one calm summer night, 15
Went home and put a bullet through his head.

Edwin Arlington Robinson (1869-1935)

Section B

Answer 1 question from this section.

JANE AUSTEN: Mansfield Park

2

Either (a) “It is, indeed, the faculty of remembrance, which may be said to place us in the class of moral agents.” (Samuel Johnson) In light of this statement, discuss the significance of memory in Mansfield Park.

Or (b) Write a critical commentary on the following passage, paying particular attention to the presentation of Maria Bertram, here and elsewhere in the novel.

“But now, sincerely, do not you find the place altogether worse than you expected?”

“No, indeed, far otherwise. I find it better, grander, more complete in its style, though that style may not be the best. And to tell you the truth,” speaking rather lower, “I do not think that I shall ever see Sotherton again with so much pleasure as I do now. Another summer will hardly improve it to me.” 5

After a moment’s embarrassment the lady replied, “You are too much a man of the world not to see with the eyes of the world. If other people think Sotherton improved, I have no doubt that you will.”

“I am afraid I am not quite so much the man of the world as might be good for me in some points. My feelings are not quite so evanescent, nor my memory of the past under such easy dominion as one finds to be the case with men of the world.” 10

This was followed by a short silence. Miss Bertram began again. “You seemed to enjoy your drive here very much this morning. I was glad to see you so well entertained. You and Julia were laughing the whole way.” 15

“Were we? Yes, I believe we were; but I have not the least recollection of what. Oh! I believe I was relating to her some ridiculous stories of an old Irish groom of my uncle’s. Your sister loves to laugh.”

“You think her more light-hearted than I am.”

“More easily amused,” he replied, “consequently you know,” smiling, “better company. I could not have hoped to entertain you with Irish anecdotes during a ten miles’ drive.” 20

“Naturally, I believe, I am as lively as Julia, but I have more to think of now.”

“You have undoubtedly – and there are situations in which very high spirits would denote insensibility. Your prospects, however, are too fair to justify want of spirits. You have a very smiling scene before you.” 25

“Do you mean literally or figuratively? Literally I conclude. Yes, certainly, the sun shines and the park looks very cheerful. But unluckily that iron gate, that ha-ha, give me a feeling of restraint and hardship. I cannot get out, as the starling said.” As she spoke, and it was with expression, she walked to the gate; he followed her. “Mr. Rushworth is so long fetching this key!” 30

“And for the world you would not get out without the key and without Mr. Rushworth’s authority and protection, or I think you might with little difficulty pass round the edge of the gate, here, with my assistance; I think it might be done, if you really wished to be more at large, and could allow yourself to think it not prohibited.” 35

“Prohibited! nonsense! I certainly can get out that way and I will. Mr. Rushworth will be here in a moment you know – we shall not be out of sight.”

“Or if we are, Miss Price will be so good as to tell him, that he will find us near that knoll, the grove of oak on the knoll.”

Fanny, feeling all this to be wrong, could not help making an effort to prevent it. “You will hurt yourself, Miss Bertram,” she cried, “you will certainly hurt yourself against those spikes – you will tear your gown – you will be in danger of slipping into the Ha-Ha. You had better not go.” 40

He cousin was safe on the other side, while these words were spoken, and smiling with all the good-humour of success she said, “Thank you, my dear Fanny, but I and my gown are alive and well, and so good bye.” 45

Fanny was again left to her solitude, and with no increase of pleasant feelings, for she was sorry for almost all that she had seen and heard, astonished at Miss Bertram, and angry with Mr. Crawford. By taking a circuitous, and as it appeared to her, very unreasonable direction to the knoll, they were soon beyond her eye, and for some minutes longer she remained without sight or sound of any companion. 50

Section C

Answer 1 question from this section.

JOHN WEBSTER: The Duchess of Malfi

3

Either (a) “The calamities of tragedy do not simply happen, nor are they sent; they proceed mainly from actions, and those the actions of men.” How relevant is this statement to The Duchess of Malfi?

Or (b) Write a critical commentary on the following extract, paying particular attention to the presentation of Ferdinand, here and elsewhere in the play.

PESCARA Pray thee, what's his disease?

DOCTOR

A very pestilent disease, my lord,
They call lycanthropia.

PESCARA What's that?

I need a dictionary to't.

5

DOCTOR I'll tell you:

In those that are possess with't there o'er-flows
Such melancholy humour they imagine

Themselves to be transformed into wolves:

Steal forth to church-yards in the dead of night

10

And dig dead bodies up: as two nights since

One met the Duke 'bout midnight in a lane

Behind St. Mark's church, with the leg of a man

Upon his shoulder; and he howled fearfully;

Said he was a wolf, only the difference

15

Was, a wolf's skin was hairy on the outside,

His on the inside; bad them take their swords,

Rip up his flesh, and try. Straight I was sent for,

And having ministered to him, found his grace

Very well recovered.

20

PESCARA I am glad on't.

DOCTOR

Yet not without some fear of a relapse:

If he grow to his fit again I'll go

A nearer way to work with him than ever

Paracelsus dreamed of: if they'll give me

Leave I'll buffet his madness out of him.

25

Stand aside, he comes.

[Enter CARDINAL, FERDINAND, MALATESTA, and BOSOLA, who stays apart]

FERDINAND

Leave me.

MALATESTTE
 Why doth your kingship love this solitariness?

FERDINAND
 Eagles commonly fly alone: they are crows, daws and starlings that flock together. – Look, what's that follows me? 30

MALATESTTE
 Nothing, my lord.

FERDINAND
 Yes.

MALATESTTE
 'Tis your shadow.

FERDINAND
 Stay it, let it not haunt me. 35

MALATESTTE
 Impossible, if you move, and the sun shine.

FERDINAND
 I will throttle it.
[Throws himself on the ground]

MALATESTTE
 Oh, my lord, you are angry with nothing.

FERDINAND
 You are a fool. How is't possible I should catch my shadow unless I fall upon't? When I go to hell, I mean to carry a bribe, for look you, good gifts evermore make way for the worst persons. 40

PESCARA
 Rise, good my lord.

FERDINAND
 I am studying the art of patience.

PESCARA
 'Tis a noble virtue.

FERDINAND
 To drive six snails before me, from this town to Moscow – neither use goad nor whip to them, but let them take their own time – the patient'st man i'th'world match me for an experiment – and I'll crawl after like a sheep-biter. 45

CARDINAL
 Force him up.
[They get FERDINAND to his feet]

FERDINAND
 Use me well, you were best: what I have done, I have done, I'll confess nothing. 50

DOCTOR
 Now let me come to him. Are you mad, my lord? Are you out of your princely wits?
