History was made on Wednesday afternoon when Singaporean paddler, Feng Tianwei, won the women's singles bronze medal match. Having lose (1) _____ her semi-finals match just a day before, Tianwei regained her kampousure (2) _____ quickly and displayed a veylient (3) _____ effort in winning the bronze medal match.

Without disapointink (4) _____ the fans in Singapore, Tianwei takes (5) _____ just 25 minutes to trounce her Japanese opounant (6) _____. Even though the Japanese was ranked high (7) _____ than Tianwei, she had no chance at defeat (8) _____ our local pride throughout the match.

Feng Tianwei, which (9) _____ Singaporeans now sing praises of, will feature next in the women's team event. She will spearhead the team in the hope of showcasing another specktairculer (10) _____ performance against the rivals. The team will be working towards retaining the silver medal earned in the 2008 Olympic Games.

In 1937, Sylvan Goldman, the owner of a grocery store was inspyered (1) _____ to invent a shopping trolley. He observed that the shopping baskets of the time were fleemzee (2) _____ and became quite heavy to carry.

By imagine (3) _____ two folding chairs pushed together, wheels placed underneath and a basket on top, Goldman had the first idea of a 'shopping cart'. The carts were designed to be colapssable (4) _____ but the prototypes folded up too easily and often gave way completely. Even when the shopping carts were perfected, they were not popular with the shoppers which (5) _____ felt they would show its (6) _____ weakness if they could not carry their perchases (7) _____ in a basket. So Goldman employed a team of people to push the carts around his store and demonstrate their useful (8) _____.

The shopping trolley as we know it today has changed from the origeenel (49) _____ design but is now seen in all (10) _____ supermarket and in many other stores. It has become so popular that now it comes in all shapes and sizes.

Proverbs are words of wisdom and these sayings are often used to teach common sense to people. Some proverbs may seem ridiculous, such as curioucity (1) _____ killed the cat, but they may actually happen in real life. In 1916, a cat in New York wanded (2) _____ onto the roof of an apartment block and was trapping (3) _____. It began to wail and the owner called for the fire brigade for help. Even though the firemen found it strange to offer assistants (4) _____ to a pet, they soon arrived and tried to help, the cat off a (5) _____ roof. They lowered a rope from the side of the building but the cat ignored it. It (6) _____ owner even climbed up the fire ladder to persuade the cat to leave the roof, but to no aveil (7) _____.

After hours of attempts, the exhorsted (8) _____ firemen packed up their equipment and left. Rather than risk further embarrassing (9) _____, the owner also returned to her home. The next day, there was a sudden komotion (10) _____ among the residents in the building. The cat had freed itself. Instead of returning to its home, the cat continued exploring the rooftop until it fell through a chimney. The cat was killed.

Mirrors have been around for a while, but they have not always been made of glass. The first mirrors, from around 600 B.C. is (1) _____ very simple. Before the discovery of glass, they were made of reflective metereals (2) _____ such as obsidian, bronze or copper, painstakingly polished into a sheen. Simple and primitive, they offered a thisthorted (3) _____, fairly unclear reflection. As such, they were used mainly to (4) _____ show. They were also costly and hence were indications of pristeach (5) _____ and wealth.

Then came the craftsmen of Venice which (6) _____ were masters at working with glass. By 1291, they perfected the technique of blew (7) _____ and rolling smooth, unblemished glass sheets. Coating such pieces of polished plate glass with a solution of tin or (8) _____ mercury, they were able to create an object capable of accurately reflecting the world.

So prized was the secret of mirror manoofactcher (9) _____ that artisans were granted special prevelages (10) _____ by the government, and were even able to marry the daughters of nobles. There were two sides to the story: the Venetian state would also execute any craftsmen who attempted to reveal their methods to other countries.
